SUCCESS WITH SWINE

Hog Is by Himself as Economical Producer of Meat.

Special farrowing pens are provided only when many breeding sows are kept, but where there is to be a removal from the ordinary quarters to a special place it should be done in good time so that the sow may become thoroughly accustomed to her new surroundings.

the space allowed is too limited and we frequently see big, heavy sows with hardly room to turn around in the diminutive apartment that, previous to farrowing, served them as sleeping quarters.

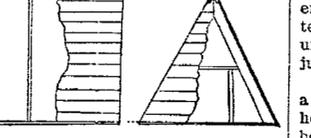

Small breeds should be allowed a space of not less than 8 feet by 8 feet, increasing in the case of the larger breeds up to 12 feet by 8 feet, or 12 feet by 10 feet, and to prevent the young pigs from being crushed against the wall it is a good plan to fix a strong rail around each side of the farrowing place, at a height of from seven to nine inches from the floor and a similar distance from the wall.

This will prevent the sow floundering down with her back against the side of the pen and provides a refuge for the youngsters who can get under the projection.

It is a great mistake to provide the farrowing sow with a large quantity of bedding. Under ordinary circumstances there is no better bedding material for pigs than good wheat straw, but for the farrowing sow a moderate quantity of short stuff is preferable to the long materials, in which the pigs are apt to get tangled and unable to escape quickly out of the way of a clumsy mother.

The question whether at farrowing time the sow should be left to her own devices, or assisted in any way in taking charge of the pigs until the birth is complete, is much debated by pig breeders. She should certainly be watched.

In many cases the sow farrows during the night and is found with her pigs all right and comfortable in the morning, but it is not always so and hundreds of young pigs are lost annually and not a few sacrificed sows are the result of the want of a capable attendant.

It is certainly an advantage to have an experienced man at hand while the sow is farrowing, but there are many evils associated with untimely or undue interference.

NEW GLOVES FOR BRAVE COP

Fruit Peddler Shows His Gratitude to Milwaukee Officer for Saving His Property.

Milwaukee.—A pair of white gloves. This is the reward Traffic Patrolman Rohde received for risking his life in stopping a runaway a few days ago.

"I am satisfied," said the patrolman as he looked at his gloves and smiled.

William Horowitz, a fruit peddler was getting on his wagon at Seventh and Vilet streets when the horse sided and ran toward Chestnut street. Patrolman Rohde noticed the horse on the left side of the street, and as he sped past Chestnut street grabbed one of the lines. The horse dragged the patrolman. Rohde clung to the lines and soon stopped the horse.

When Horowitz came to the scene a few minutes later the patrolman's gloves were torn and soiled and he was bruised about the face. Horowitz agreed to buy him a new pair of gloves.

DEALS OUT POETIC JUSTICE

Man Sentenced to Serve "Barrel of Days" at State Penal Farm in Indiana.

Bloomington, Ind.—A Monroe county jury dealt out poetic justice to Tuck Pendegrift, tried here on a "blind tiger" charge on a change of venue from Lawrence county, and gave him a "barrel of days" at the state penal farm at Putnamville and a fine of $50.

A "barrel of days," according to the verdict returned by the jury, is the same number of days that barrel of beer contains bottles—144.

Pendegrift was charged with running a "blind tiger" at the "half-way house," between Bedford and Mitchell.

Charles Goss of Sanders entered a plea of guilty of running a "blind tiger" at Sanders, seven miles south of here, and was sent to the penal farm for ninety days and fined $50. James Strange, on a habitual drunkard charge, was sent to the penal farm for sixty days.

IS JUST LIKE A SOLDIER

Wants Human Finger for a Stick Pin, but One Jeweler Refuses to Mount It.

Junction City, Kan.—A human finger will shortly ornament the neckties of Private Sherrill, Troop L, Thirtieth cavalry, at Fort Riley, if he can persuade any of the local jewelers to mount it for him on a stick pin.

Sherrill walked into a jewelry store here and placed the gruesome object on the counter.

"Can you mount this for me on a stick pin?" he asked. The jeweler replied that he could. He picked it up. "What is it?" he asked. When told that it was a human finger he refused to undertake the job.

Sherrill says that the finger was given to him by his father, who cut it from the hand of a negro, who was lynched in Cairo, Ill., in 1904. It was "pickled" by a physician and Sherrill has been carrying it in his pocket for several years.

CARRIED WILL IN HIS SHOE

"Fare-Beater," Injured by a Train, Completes Unsigned Document Before Operation.

Wichita, Kan.—When a northbound passenger train on the Orient railway pulled out of Oakford, Okla., a few nights ago, a stranger swung on to the baggage car. At Fairview the stranger, who gave his name as Wolkirk, attempted to leap from the car and fell under. His left leg was cut in two just below the knee.

Before placing him in a conveyance a physician clipped a shred that was holding the left leg together. Before being operated upon the stranger requested that his remaining shoe be taken off.

In it was a will disposing of farm property in the state of Washington. Wolkirk had not signed the will, which was so worded as to make his three children his heirs. He signed it and the operation proceeded.

BOOZE FOR A TOOTHACHE

Story an Old One, but Judge Hill Liked It and Gives Mary Another Chance.

Chicago.—Mary Cornell took the advice of a friend when she had a toothache, according to her story to Judge Hill a few days ago.

"She told me to put whisky on the aching tooth," she testified.

"How do you explain that a policeman found you in a stupor?" asked the court.

"I must have swallowed some of it," said Mary.

"That's one of the old ones, Mary," said Judge Hill. "I'll give you another chance. Don't get any more toothaches."

A Clinging Grapevine.

Apalachicola, Fla.—John Marshall has a large and vigorous grapevine growing on his home place. The vine measures two and one-half inches in diameter. Recently Mr. Marshall moved a decayed fence post near his residence, and after removing the post he discovered that this thrifty grapevine sprang up from the ground near this post, passed through the post and assumed its large diameter after emerging from the post.

HAMPTON HOTEL MAN ANSWERS CHARGES AT JUSTICE'S HEARING

Mrs. Malone Brings Suit Against Vincent Bushman, Charging Him With Selling Liquor to Husband—Held For Court

Disclosures in a hearing before Justice Harnish Tuesday afternoon indicate that the people of Hampton have had considerable annoyance from a licensed drinking place in that town recently and that the present proceedings have bearing on an effort to remedy that condition.

Mrs. Annie Malone appeared in the role of prosecutrix, her complaint being against S. V. Bushman, proprietor of the Hampton Hotel, whom she charges with selling liquor to a man of "known intemperate habits" and "to a man visibly under the influence of liquor," alleging that her husband, Albert Malone, measures up to these specifications.

A number of witnesses were called by District Attorney Wible, who represented the prosecution. The trend of testimony was that on the night of June 12th, Malone drank several bottles of beer in the bar room of the hotel and that the proprietor was in the room at the time. This was followed by other witnesses, who testified to Malone's reputation for sobriety in the neighborhood, they saying that he was a very capable workman, but addicted to the extreme use of liquor. Mrs. Malone told of having notified the proprietor some time ago not to sell to her husband, but that it did no good, as he was drunk as frequently as before. This notice was withdrawn when Malone told her that he kept up the drinking for spite, and that he would quit if she removed his name from the blacklist. However, he failed to do it.

Attorney C. S. Duncan, representing Mr. Bushman, in cross-examining Mrs. Malone, asked her by whose advice she brought this prosecution and was told that she was advised by Mr. Wible and Sheriff Thompson, and the explanation was then made that the people of that community had been censuring these peace officers for allowing conditions of rowdiness growing out of the conduct of that hotel to continue, and that they advised her that the proper procedure would be for some resident of the community to lay an information, which was done.

A REMARKABLE BOOK

Under the title "J'Accuse," the famous phrase used by Emile Zola in the Dreyfus case, an unknown writer has published at Lussane, Switzerland, a book in which he brushes aside with contempt, all the arguments advanced to justify Germany's stand in the present war. From the preface of this remarkable work the following is taken:

This book was written by a German. Not by a Frenchman, Russian, or Englishman.

By a German who is unbranded and unbranded, unthought and unbuyable. By a German who loves his Fatherland as well as anybody, but who writes this book for the very reason that he does love his Fatherland.

Born on German soil, reared under German Kultur, German by ancestry, language and sentiments, he knows all the virtues of the German people and likewise their errors and weaknesses. From their virtues—as is the case everywhere—their weakness arise.

From their virtue of loyalty comes their blind trust, which does not investigate whether the good faith of the nation has been cheated, from their virtue of fidelity comes unquestioning obedience, which does not ask whether the path pointed out leads to guilt and disaster.

The fidelity of the German people has been shamefully abused by its leaders; the usually clear-seeing eyes of that people have been blinded by ignorance. From peaceful citizens, fighters full of hate and revengefulness have been made; from representatives of high culture blind and narrow worshippers of success, from men of world-wide mental vision, selfish-hearted, provincially-minded men, from luminaries of art and science "slaves of barons trained in academic freedom."

The German nation has been ruined and blinded that it might be driven into a war which it had never foreseen, never planned, never desired. That it might be "freed," it has been enslaved. To break this spell, to liberate the nation from its "liberators" I have written this book of truth.

A true son of Germany, I see my blinded motherland staggering toward the abyss, and I rush forward to save her from the deadly plunge.

Is it still allowable to speak the truth in the Germany of today, or have matters gone so far that lying is customary, truth-telling strange? You dispute what I call the truth. Well, then, let me speak, and contradict me. But remember, the spoken word is sometimes dangerous; the unspoken word is always more dangerous.

You say that the truth helps your enemies. You big children, who keep your eyes closed in order to escape danger. Your enemies knew the truth long ago; nobody in the world is ignorant of it; it is the openness of secrets.

Yet you, Germany, incorrigibly trusting dreamer, only you are still sleeping, though steeped in injustice, the sleep of the just. Long ago the sun has blazed forth, but you are unaware of it in the silence of your night, behind your closed shutters. How long must truth stand outside, freezing and begging before the gates of your stronghold, imploring you in vain for admittance, while within, at the groaning board, the Lie is seated?

CHILDREN'S VACATIONS

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., LL.D., Commissioner of Health

"One ship drives east and another west With the self-same winds that blow; 'Tis the set of the sails and not the gales

That sends them the way they go." Schools will soon be over and several hundred thousand boys and girls will be out for a three months' holiday.

After their winter's work in school they need change and diversion and healthful exercise. Perhaps during the school year, like any parents, you have shifted the burden of your children's supervision upon their teachers. Now for three months the full responsibility must rest upon the parental shoulders.

It's a serious problem how boys and girls shall spend their vacations. Of course if you don't take a hand in it they will settle the question for themselves. There are always other boys and girls, perhaps many of them that you are in no way acquainted with, and of course there are always both good and bad diversions at hand for healthy youngsters.

Through their parents' lack of interest many children form bad habits and cultivate evil associates during school vacations. Boys' and girls' minds need entertaining occupation and their bodies need plenty of healthful exercise. The parents should try to guide this natural craving and where circumstances make it possible to join and share in some of the vacation amusements of their children.

While the majority of us must continue our regular occupations, the summer usually offers some chance to get into the open and hark back to Nature.

Every boy and girl naturally has something of the love of our primitive forefathers for the woods and streams. Cultivate this and share it. Since our schools have been teaching natural history you will find them especially keen. They will have things of interest to tell you. All this will serve to give you an agreeable change and it will encourage the girls and boys to take an interest in the wonders of God's great out-of-doors. You can do nothing better for their health, enjoyment and future happiness than to stimulate their interest in these things.

GOOD POETRY

True worth is in being, not seeming, In doing each day that goes by Some little good, not in dreaming Of great things to do by and by. For whatever men say in blindness, Or in spite of their fancies of youth, There is nothing so kindly as kindness, And nothing so royal as truth.

We get back our mere as we measure, We cannot do wrong and feel right, Nor can we give pain and feel pleasure, For justice avenges each slight. The air for the wing of the sparrow, The bush for the robin and wren, But always the path that is narrow and straight For the children of men. (Alice Carey)

CLERKS GET INCREASE

Jesse E. Snyder and W. Preston Hull, clerks at the local postoffice, will receive a raise of $100 a year in their salaries. The increases came as a surprise to them for the reason Postmaster Duncan was notified some time ago by the department that no recommendations should be made for increase of salaries, owing to lack of funds. The communication of Wednesday stated that the yearly promotions will be authorized July 1.

ADAMS COUNTY PROVERBS

Blessed are those who loved to be fooled, for their money shall depart from them. Blessed is he who very little satisfieth, for he will not be burdened with a heavy load. Blessed is he to whom a penny looks large, for somebody will get what he hoardeth when the last horn is blown.

DIDN'T HEAR WARNING

Mrs. W. F. Brake, Kobeen, Franklin county, told the Coroner's jury Tuesday, sitting at Culbertson, that she saw the W. M. Ry. train approaching the crossing over which Andrew C. Witherspoon was about to drive; she waved and cried a warning to Witherspoon, but he did not hear, and thus drove into death. The jury gave a verdict of acquittal of any blame for the railway company and its employes.

SUBSCRIBE FOR RAILROAD

Many more subscriptions have been added to the fund that is being raised in Abbottstown for the purchase of the East Berlin railway. A meeting of the citizens was held Monday evening, at which time a large sum was raised. Mr. Leas, the owner, is desirous of having the matter settled and if the town raised $7,000, the additional $3,000 will be raised by him.

DISMISSED CASE

The case against Bert Myrick, brought by Earl Harner, charging him with disorderly conduct, did not come up for hearing yesterday, the prosecutor withdrawing the charge before that time.

AGED NEW OXFORD MAN HIT BY TRAIN

Dead Body of Daniel Barnitz Picked Up in Hanover Yards of Western Maryland

Supposed to have received an attack of neuralgia of the heart, to which he was subject, while wandering along the Western Maryland tracks in Hanover at some time Monday night, Daniel Barnitz, an old and respected resident of New Oxford, was struck by a Western Maryland train and instantly killed. His mangled remains were found along the track Tuesday morning. The intimation that he committed suicide is scouted by those who knew him.

In rather poor health, he had been an inmate of a sanitarium for some time, and after returning to his home had gone to Hanover to visit his niece, Miss Carrie Barnitz. Just how he found his way to the railroad is not exactly known, but the physician who examined the remains gave it as his opinion that Mr. Barnitz, being unable to sleep had arisen during the night and wandered to the railway, where he was stricken with neuralgia of the heart, to which he was subject, and fell on the track.

The body was dismembered, parts of the torso being found many feet from where he was struck. Deceased was born on the old Barnitz homestead near Hanover. For a number of years he was engaged in the cattle business, having connections in Virginia and Maryland, from which he had acquired a considerable fortune. Mr. Barnitz owned a number of valuable properties in Hanover and at his home in New Oxford. He was 66 years of age and a bachelor, his only near relative being a sister, Mrs. J. O. Swartz, New Oxford, and a number of nieces and nephews.
